Promoting Excellence in Allied Health Education through Teaching and Research Innovations

33rd Annual Fall Conference
Texas Society of Allied Health Professions

September 23-24, 2010

The University of Texas-Pan American Edinburg, Texas

The conference theme is Promoting Excellence in Allied Health Education through Teaching and Research Innovations. Platform presentations and posters are solicited that address these and related issues:

- Models for excellence in educational instruction in Allied Health programs
- Examples of innovative teaching approaches including simulation technology
- Lessons learned from teaching and research innovation efforts
- Efforts in education for outreach, service, and advocacy
- Results of research in teaching or innovations in education

Abstracts are invited for presentations and posters that highlight effective and innovative educational practices – curriculum models, educational assessment and evaluation, learning activities, interdisciplinary programs, etc., particularly as they apply to the conference theme. This is an opportunity for participants to share educational expertise and learn from colleagues across Texas.
